

STANFORD ACCESS

Those directly associated with Stanford through academic appointments have easy access to a wealth of full-text electronic journals, a variety of useful databases and the Stanford ILL department. With a library card and SUNet ID, most of Stanford's resources are open to you - enjoy! For those not associated with Stanford, please note:

Lane Medical Library: With a VA employee identification card, you are allowed physical access to the Lane Medical Library. You can make copies of articles and use the resources in the library. This card will not allow access to the library's electronic resources, such as online journals and databases. You cannot check out books or use the ILL department. However, anyone can search the library's holdings online in order to determine whether a trip to Lane is merited.

Cecil H. Green Library: Unfortunately, the VA computer network does not allow one to search the Socrates online catalog (a directory to all of Stanford's holdings, including the Green Library). However, CHCE does possess an institutional library card that allows physical access to the library (see the Administrative Assistant). If you have several articles that you suspect are a part of the Green collection, and you can not wait for Palo Alto ILL, a trip is definitely suggested. For one or two articles, you might try calling the reference desk, identifying yourself as a CHCE employee, and asking if the library possesses that journal or journals.
